

Rewards of Rural Medical Practice

Reading time:
Tom Wilson
Last Modified on 01/05/2024 12:06 pm AEST

Tags: Medical Practitioner | Medical Officer | Registrar | Podcasts | Technology | On Demand

30 October 2020 | 21 mins 18 secs

MIPS member, Dr Bryce Nicol practices in a remote indigenous community in Palm Island, Far North Queensland. He outlines some of his experiences as a small-town doctor working remotely. The monetary rewards are significant, but the personal benefits of helping a community and gaining new experiences far outweigh the isolation. He discusses some of the key elements necessary for junior doctors to be able to survive practice in a rural setting.

Available on

Related articles

CAREER LEADERSHIP PROGRAM >