Modern healthcare practice can create ethical issues around both clinical practice such as organ transplants, end of life care and professional practice (mandatory reporting, substance abuse, refusal of treatment and transition of care). This webinar is hosted by clinico-legal experts and walks you through real world examples featuring Australian practitioners.

Learning objectives

1. Discuss the ethico-legal responsibilities and challenges faced by healthcare practitioners
2. Apply relevant legislative frameworks to real-life situations commonly encountered in medical practice
3. Design effective measures and strategies to prevent negligence investigations and patients' complaints.

Presenters

Kellie Dell'Oro - Principal, Meridian Lawyers, Victoria and part of MIPS legal panel. Kellie has over 20 years experience exclusively in insurance & health law

Russell Jones - Manager, Litigation and Indemnity, MIPS & insurance expert with extensive medical indemnity experience
