At MIPS, we strive to support members holistically with a comprehensive educational program that equips them with the most up to date industry knowledge, best practices, and risk management approaches.

Through our medico-legal advisory service, we often receive queries from members about how to deal with life insurers and patients who have medical conditions that they might need to disclose to their life insurer.

This webinar follows on from our previous webinar about independent medical assessments and will touch on similar issues and dilemmas. We hope that this event will equip you with a practical understanding about the basics of life insurance, the role of medical information in life insurance and understanding how to navigate circumstances where patients may have obligations to disclose information to insurers.

Learning outcomes

At the end of this webinar, attendees will be able to:

- Discuss the basics of life insurance, the types of insurance available and the role of medical information in life insurance.
- Using case studies, illustrate common scenarios that doctors might encounter at various points in their careers with patients who are purchasing or claiming on a life insurance policy.
- Identify pitfalls that healthcare practitioners may encounter when completing forms for patients claiming or purchasing life insurance.
