

Testamentary capacity: Medico-legal risks in clinical practice - pre webinar activity

Reading time:

Pamela Ferrada

Date created: 30/04/2026

This CPD activity uses a podcast episode to introduce testamentary capacity and undue influence in estate-related decision-making. It is designed to prompt reflection on current knowledge, highlight common medicolegal issues and prepare MIPS members to apply Australian legal and clinical principles to real-world scenarios.

Section A - Educational Activity (1 hour)

Listen to the podcast episode: Emotional Damages: Episode 5: recap: Testamentary Capacity & Undue Influence: The role of forensic psychiatry in estate litigation

Jurisdictional disclaimer This activity includes material developed in the United States and may refer to legal concepts, terminology or professional practices that do not fully align with Australian law. This material is intended to support reflection and self-assessment rather than provide jurisdiction specific legal guidance. Participants are encouraged to consider how the principles discussed apply within their own legal and regulatory context.

Section B - Educational Activity (1hour)

---