Clinical supervision is a critical component of safe, high-quality care both in medicine and dentistry, yet many clinicians undertake supervisory roles without formal training.

In this webinar, our panel will discuss the medico-legal foundations of effective supervision through practical, scenario-based discussion. The session will cover Ahpra's new supervised practice standards, vicarious liability, AI scribes, telehealth and mandatory reporting. It will also explore requests from pharmacists and registered nurses to mentor or supervise them in relation to expanded prescribing.

Learning outcomes

By the end of this session, you will be able to:

- Discuss effective supervision principles and meet key regulatory and medico-legal obligations in clinical practice.
- Evaluate emerging supervision challenges, including the use of AI scribes, mandatory reporting obligations, and requests to mentor or supervise healthcare professionals in relation to expanded prescribing roles.
- Plan practical strategies to address challenging supervision scenarios and minimise medico-legal risks.
